

Job Description – Automotive Body Technician

Summary Statement

The Automotive Body Technician assembles new reproduction automobile bodies.

Description

The Automotive Body Technician assembles new automobile unibodies with new reproduction and fabricated parts, fits and gaps body panels, and prepares bodies for paint. The Automotive Body Technician performs spot and GMAW welding and uses conventional body work hand tools to shape and fit metal. The Automotive Body Technician also fits exterior trim, glass and mechanisms, door and trunk closures, convertible top frames, and other components.

Duties and Tasks Performed Critical to Success

The Automotive Body Technician must be proficient in spot and GMAW welding, working with steel and fiberglass body panels, metal shaping, and general automotive fabrication. The Automotive Body Technician will work inside, around, and under the vehicle as required to perform the designated tasks. The Automotive Body Technician will also assess, propose, and implement improvements to manufacturing methods and processes.

Key Functional and Relational Responsibilities

- Build unibodies using new reproduction and fabricated parts
- Fit and gap body panels
- Perform all metal work required to prepare bodies for paint
- Test fit trim and closure mechanisms to ensure proper appearance and operation
- Meet quality, cost, and production targets
- Assist in developing engineering designs and implementing engineering changes

Relationships and Roles within the Company

The Automotive Body Technician will report directly to the Body supervisor and will work closely with the engineering, manufacturing, and supply chain management teams.

Qualifications

The candidate will have I-CAR certification and 2-5 years' experience in an automotive body shop environment.

Company Description

Revology Cars manufactures and distributes a lineup of new reproduction 1960s Ford Mustangs and Shelby GTs featuring modern powertrains, suspension, brakes, safety, and comfort/convenience features. Launched in 2014 by a former Ford Motor Company executive, Revology has secured financial backing from a prominent private equity group. The company is an authorized licensee of Ford Motor Company and Shelby American.

Compensation

Compensation will consist of a competitive hourly wage and an annual performance bonus, based on achievement of objectives. The company provides a health, dental, and vision benefits plan to all full-time employees.
